

Bo Dankis Appointed Chairman of Coromatic Group

Coromatic Group, the Nordic leader in IT and power continuity, has appointed Bo Dankis as their new Chairman of the Board. Bo Dankis has long experience from leading positions in Swedish business, including the roles of CEO at Perstorp Group and Assa Abloy, where he contributed to developing the businesses, both through extensions into new markets and through acquisitions.

In addition to a comprehensive background from senior management positions, Bo Dankis has long experience of working on the board of large organizations. He is the Chairman of the Board at the Swedish Trade Council, Gadelius and Perstorp Group. He is also a board member of Gunnebo.

“We are happy to have Bo Dankis as our new Chairman and we look forward to continue developing Coromatic Group to reach our objective of a turnover of one billion SEK. Here, we hope to benefit from Bo Dankis’ collective competences and experiences from the Swedish business environment as well as from his international ventures,” said Maths Waxin, CEO of Coromatic Group.

Coromatic Group is a Nordic group of companies with a leading position in IT continuity and reliable power supply. During 2009 Coromatic Group built 70 complete data centers. The company also offers analysis and strategic counseling services in the area of business continuity. In 2009, the Group had a turnover of 723 million SEK.

“I look forward to being part of this fast growing Group. Coromatic has a distinct business concept, a strong market position and a very involved staff. I want to build on the good work which has already been done and contribute to making Coromatic Group not only the largest player in Sweden, but also the largest in the whole of the Nordics in their market,” said Bo Dankis, the new Chairman of Coromatic Group.
